BACK-TO-WORK DEADLINE OF WLB LONG PAST

Federal Board In Session To Ponder New Issue Injected By Union

NEW ULTIMATUM LOOMS

Labor Leader Says Nation Facing Serious Problem In Next Few Days

WASHINGTON, Nov. 22—Long past the 10 a. m. deadline of the government's back-to-work ultimatum, leaders of 5,000 striking Ohio telephone workers today withheld their decision on whether they would recommend termination of the crippling walkout.

An intricate legal question arose as the hearing was reopened this morning and members of the War Labor Board retired again into executive session to thrash out the issue.

A new problem was injected into the dispute when Robert G. Pollock of Cleveland, president of the Ohio Federation of Telephone Workers, asked the WLB: "Can the company make a proposal to the union at this time?"

Assurance Sought
Pollock apparently was seeking some definite assurance before calling off the strike that the 105 out-of-town operators employed in Dayton, O., exchange would be removed.

Some 500 other Dayton operators started the walkout originally in protest against payment of living expenses—plus regular salaries—to the "transferees."

Nathan P. Feinsinger, WLB public member, replied to Pollock's question that the Cleveland regional WLB had directed the company to cease negotiations until the work stoppage ended. He expressed belief that public members of the national board would have to sustain that order.

However, when Pollock pressed for a definite commitment, Feinsinger said that public, industry and labor members would have to retire into executive session and decide the question.

Amplifying Pollock's questioning, Lena Eisenhart, of Cleveland, president of the Northeast Ohio Traffic Council declared: "What assurance have we that this condition (employment of out of town operators in Dayton) will not continue? The responsibility for the paralyzing effect this strike will have on the war effort

America, Britain Fail To Reach Accord Over Renewal of Lend-Lease

WASHINGTON, Nov. 22—After six weeks discussions over the controversial question of renewed lend-lease for Great Britain, the British and American negotiators have failed to reach an agreement, it was officially disclosed today.

Lord Keynes, economic advisor to the British treasury and head of the mission in Washington, revealed that he is leaving tomorrow for Ottawa, and then returning to London.

He declined all requests for a news conference and refused to answer any questions regarding his mission in Washington.

The principal snag in the discussions, according to American officials, was the British desire to re-export lend-lease goods after processing into finished articles in Great Britain.

American experts of the departments of state and treasury, and the foreign economic administration stood flatly against any such concession, but did yield on the point that Britain might use some industrial raw materials secured under lend-lease for manufacture into articles for sale in England.

It was insisted, however, that these were merely "smaller items," and that no lend-lease materials, either in their original form, or in processed form, will be permitted for re-export.

FEA officials declared that this has been the American position from the beginning, and that it did not result from pressure after recent news stories appeared, stating that Britain desired to obtain three and a half billion dollars of non-military goods under lend-lease available for re-export.

British officials, it was said, have been restive under the "white paper" agreement, which prohibits re-export of lend-lease goods. They have insisted that in cases where such goods or materials are completely changed in form and value by British manufacturing processes, re-export should not be denied.

Washington officials emphasized that the failure to reach an agreement with Lord Keynes during his six weeks in the American capital does not mean a break-down of discussions. One official expressed it this way:

"We have reached no agreement, and there are no final figures for 'phase two' of lend-lease, for the Pacific war. In fact, we are in the same state as we were before Keynes came, and the discussions will continue."

Industry, Business To Halt For Celebration Of Annual Holiday

Circleville and Pickaway county residents Wednesday were making preparations to celebrate Thanksgiving in the traditional style with turkey as the main dish.

While some communities are reporting a shortage of the regulation main dish for Thanksgiving, a sufficient supply to meet the needs of residents of this vicinity was available. One local produce dealer reported plenty of turkeys while another said there was no surplus, but enough to supply local demand. Farmers in some parts of the county, had turkeys for sale.

Most of the 8,500 turkeys raised this year by the Thomas brothers, Kermit and Howard, of Route 2, Circleville, went to buyers from Pittsburgh, Youngstown, Caldwell, Cleveland and several other cities.

Kermit Thomas said this year's crop was "a little larger than usual." None of the crop will go to the armed forces, Mr. Thomas said, because Ohio packing houses are not equipped to prepare them for the government.

City and county schools were dismissed Wednesday afternoon for the Thanksgiving holiday and (Continued on Page Two)

COMMUNISM EXPLOITED

Resistance Movements Believed Encouraged For Political Ends

LONDON, Nov. 22—Growing activities of the Communist movement in the liberated countries of Europe is causing considerable concern in American and British official circles today.

Belgium, France and Italy are viewed with particular alarm.

Although the majority of Belgian, French and Italian people are believed to be far from actually inclined toward the Red philosophy, the fact remains that the Communists constitute the strongest and best organized political movements in each of the three countries.

In Belgium and France they are trying to exploit the resistance movements for political ends. Their efforts to perpetuate armed resistance groups as a political army precipitated the crisis between them and both the Belgian and French governments, according to views expressed by high officials of America and Great Britain.

Reds Rebuffed
The Communists insisted in France and Belgium that the armed resistance groups be incorporated into the regular armies under the stipulation that they remain as separate bodies and retain their political identity. These demands by the Communist elements provoked serious reaction from both the French and Belgian authorities.

Both countries found it necessary to issue edicts ordering the armed resistance groups to lay down their guns and disband immediately.

In Belgium, this government decree fomented such a crisis that the Allied high command had to intervene. The high command simply threatened to send Allied troops into Belgium to maintain the law and order if the Communist elements refused to comply with the order.

Commies Infuriated
The Belgian Communists, as perhaps might have been expected, were infuriated, and, according to information obtainable in high Allied diplomatic circles, the Red leaders now are assailing Prime (Continued on Page Two)

LAST CIVIL WAR VET IN GOOD HEALTH AT 99

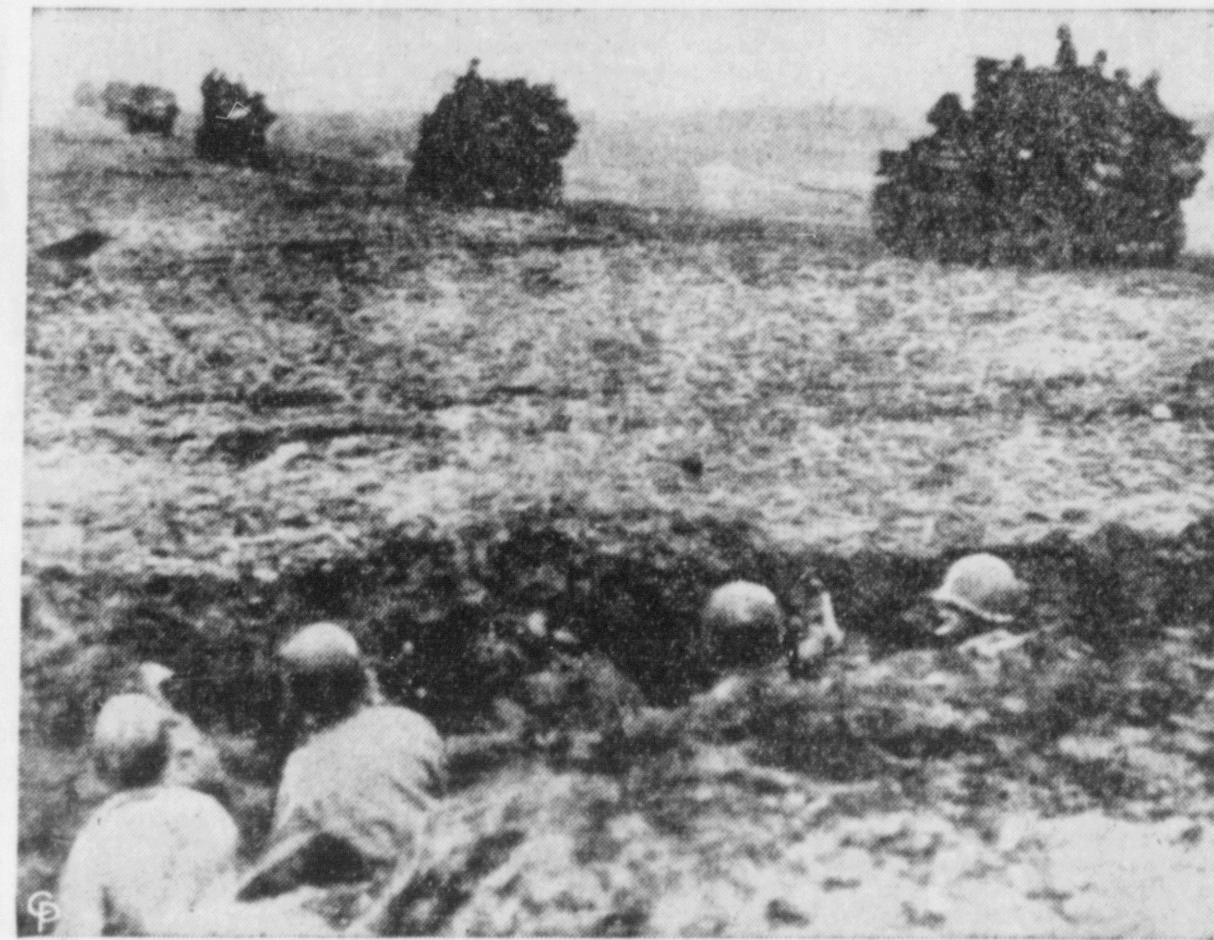

DELAWARE, O., Nov. 22—Isaiah Wilson, believed to be the last Civil War veteran in Ohio and one of the last living persons in the nation to have voted for Abraham Lincoln, quietly observed his 99th birthday at his Delaware home today.

In amazing good health, Wilson makes his home with his daughter, Mrs. Laura Belle Hughes, and when the weather permits, "Uncle Ike" walks the quarter of a mile downtown.

Born near Troy, O., Nov. 22, 1845, Wilson was orphaned at an early age and was "bound out" to an uncle who lived nearby. Three days after his 18th birthday, he enlisted in the Union Navy.

During his service of a year on the gunboat "Curlew" in the Mississippi river, Wilson took part in cannon battles with land-based confederate troops, lost a friend with whom he enlisted, suffered a broken leg, and voted for Lincoln.

Yanks Kill 63,388 Nips In Marianas And Palau Campaigns

PEARL HARBOR, Nov. 22—A Pacific fleet headquarters communique today listed the staggering total of 63,388 Japanese killed by American forces in campaigns in the Marianas and Palau islands.

The communique covering action through November 13, also disclosed that 3,267 Japanese have been captured in the invasions of the two island groups and that American forces are continuing to mop up isolated remnants of the enemy garrisons.

The communique listed the totals of enemy killed and captured by islands as follows:

	Killed	Captured
Salpan	26,277	2,068
Guam	17,238	463
Tinian	6,893	316
Peleliu-Angaur	12,980	420

In addition to listing Japanese dead and captured, the communique also disclosed further information on the smashing American carrier-based air strike against the Manila area of the Philippines last Saturday.

Jap aircraft losses in the raid were raised to 126 from a previously reported 118. Eight planes not mentioned in Monday's communique were added to the total of enemy aircraft shot down in combat. At least 100 Jap planes were reported destroyed on the ground in the carrier strikes launched by planes of the United States Third Fleet which also left two large cargo ships and a large oil tanker burning in Manila harbor.

Other American planes, the communique disclosed, carried out new raids against Jap island bases over the weekend, bombing the Northern Palau, Yap island in the Western Carolines, and by-passed enemy bases in the Marshall islands.

NAZIS INCREASE ROBOT USE AGAINST AMERICANS

THOUSAND POUND CAKE GIFT FOR WOUNDED 'YANKS

DENVER, Nov. 22—The world's largest cake—a 1,000-pound affair—will be one of the many gifts for wounded soldiers returned from overseas at tomorrow's Thanksgiving Day party at the Army's Fitz-simons general hospital near Denver. The cake is the gift of the bakers of Denver.

Into the huge cake were placed 300 dozen eggs, 60 gallons of milk, 300 pounds of flour, 300 pounds of sugar, 300 pounds of powdered sugar, 125 pounds of shortening, six pounds of salt, 2 1/4 pounds of vanilla extract and 2 1/2 pounds of baking powder.

The giant hunk of pastry will be cut for the soldiers by Louise Albritton, willowy blonde Hollywood film star, who arrives in Denver today to take part in the Sixth War Loan drive.

At all army posts and hospitals, there will be turkey and all the trimmings.

FRENCH ARREST P. G. WODEHOUSE, FAMED HUMORIST

LONDON, Nov. 22—The arrest by French authorities of P. G. Wodehouse, famed British humorist and author, and Mrs. Wodehouse, was confirmed in London today, Reuter's News Agency reported.

The arrests took place in Paris, it was said.

The procedure to be followed, the questions of extradition and trial, according to the report, are being considered in consultation by the French authorities with the British government.

The report of the consultations, it was said, was taken to indicate that the author will be tried in Britain.

It was not known, according to Reuter's diplomatic correspondent, on what precise charge or charges the Wodehouses were taken into custody but it was recalled that on a number of occasions the author broadcast on the Berlin radio in English.

TIGER WOMAN CHARGE FILED

Wife Of Marine Accused Of Prompting Murder Of Assailant

WATERTOWN, N. Y., Nov. 22 —Mrs. Lily Bell Foster, 26, whose Marine corporal husband faces a first-degree murder trial in the knife-slaying of the man she says criminally assaulted her, was under arrest herself today, branded as a "Tiger Woman" who aided and "commanded" her husband in the killing.

District Attorney Carl J. Hynes, who obtained the arrest warrant after questioning her all night, declared Lily "commanded, counseled and assisted" Cpl. Arthur D. Foster last Thursday when he plunged a knife into the heart of Robert D. Hodgkinson, 35, father of five children, in a restaurant where she pointed Hodgkinson out as "the man who raped me."

Hynes thus indicated that he would combat Foster's expected "unwritten law" defense at the trial by attempting to show that the couple deliberately planned the murder, and that the slaying was not prompted by a sudden flare-up of passionate hatred.

Meantime, while Foster was in jail awaiting trial and his wife was in custody awaiting grand jury action on the prosecutor's charge, the couple's three children, Beverly, Ann, 8, Patricia, 3, and Arthur, Jr., 17 months, all ill, were under a doctor's care at the home (Continued on Page Two)

DREAD "BLACK PLAGUE" FOUND IN PORT TACOMA

TACOMA, Wash., Nov. 22 —The port of Tacoma was listed today as a "plague-infested" port by the U. S. public health service after the discovery of rats bearing bubonic plague, the dread "black plague" of the middle ages.

Under the designation, all ships calling at the port may be subjected to fumigation before docking at other harbors. In addition, they must fly a flag indicating that they come from a "plague-infested" port.

Eleven "positive" specimens recently were found among 183 rats caught in one day by four full-time waterfront rat trappers. Dr. E. R. Frarger, city health officer, said the plague has not appeared among human beings.

METZ FALLS TO PATTON

General Crumbling Of Nazi Power Clearly Indicated In Battles

By International News Service
The whole South German defense line guarding Baden and the Black forest from Allied invasion was unhinged today when troops of the French First Army in a spectacular offensive captured the fortress city of Mulhouse in the valley of the river Rhine.

While American troops farther to the north battled their way along the super motor highway to Aachen, penetrating to the outskirts of Julich where knights of the Teutonic order centuries ago established the first watch on the Rhine, a brief announcement from Paris told of the important Mulhouse victory.

Fighting is under way in the streets of Belfort just to the south and that major garrison of German defensive strength is expected to fall shortly.

Major Victory

But the capture of Mulhouse itself placed the French in control of one of the major approaches to the German Rhine and comprised a victory comparable in importance to the Allied breakthroughs at St. Lo and Caen which led to liberation of France.

Mulhouse, along with Colmar and Strasbourg, were stolen by Adolf Hitler from France as the crowning gesture of his victory in May, 1940. He placed all Alsace and Lorraine under German domination, convinced that occupation of these two provinces, which had been under the heels of the Hohenzollerns from 1871 until 1918, would safeguard his Nazi Reich from possible invasion.

But all the work that Hitler did in refortifying Mulhouse and nearby passes through the densely wooded Vosges mountains was undone in the space of a few hours. The French First Army under Gen. Marie Emile Bethouart rode roughshod over all opposition and brought back to Mulhouse the freedom and liberty of the tricolor—supposedly banished for all time from this historic area of France.

Huns Lose Big Asset

The city of Mulhouse is a military asset of enormous importance. Standing astride the river Ill some ten miles west of the Rhine, it controls a vast region of rolling countryside and is a main station on a modern two-track railway line leading to Strasbourg some 50 miles to the north.

There are bridges across the Rhine in the vicinity of Mulhouse and the river there is only a couple of hundred yards wide. Also, just south of Colmar, there is a power station of very great value which supplies large areas of the French side of the Rhine land.

What the Germans have done to the west bank of the Rhine in the four and more years of Nazi occupation is not known to the world at large, but possession of the railway spur leading north from Mulhouse should enable the French to outflank and trap large numbers of German soldiers still holding out in the Vosges mountains.

Six or seven separate mountain passes debouch onto the Mulhouse-Strasbourg plain, and it may be expected that Gen. Bethouart will order a northward advance immediately even before attempting a crossing of the Rhine.

Spectacular Drive Through Belfort Gap Engulfs Rail Terminus

Mulhouse had a magnificent counterpart at Metz, where the United States Third Army under Lieut. Gen. George S. Patton, Jr., finally overcame all German resistance and captured this huge fortified city in its entirety.

Not since the scourge of Attila the Hun some 1,500 years ago has Metz been taken by direct assault.

Two small islands in the Moselle river just outside the city limits of Metz caved in under American air attack and artillery bombardment, and with that the brief siege ended. There probably are many thousands of Germans now cut off and isolated in some of the forts surrounding Metz which were bypassed by the Third Army in its record-breaking drive and these will be left to surrender at their leisure or to starve.

New Drives Loom

With Metz and Mulhouse safely in Allied hands the stage was all set for smashing new Allied advances the pace of which already has reduced the German propaganda machine to a tone of despair and which promises to fulfill the infernal statement of Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower that the Nazis will be broken on a battlefield not of their own choosing—the western bank of the Rhine.

There has never been any day since the war began that so clearly indicated a general crumbling of German power.

Stubborn enemy resistance continued everywhere and each Allied victory was won in a high price of life, limb and material. But the Germans clearly lacked the vigor for anything more than attritional rear-guard action. Their counter-strokes were feeble ones in contrast to the smashing armored drives of American, British and French troops.

Americans Advance

In the sector east of Aachen, the Americans were reported in the outskirts of Jülich and less than two miles from the Roer river, the last natural defense line in Hitler's keeping west of Cologne. Slow but steady advances were made in the fastnesses of the Hurtgen forest and toward Elschweiler, and in Holland, the British stabbed to the town of Maasbree, only five miles from the pivotal town of Venlo on the German-Dutch border.

Heavy night attacks by big bombers of the Royal Air Force facilitated the ground advances.

In Italy, the pace of Allied action stepped up a trifle, with enemy counter-attacks repulsed and several important mountain ridges taken.

The Russians moved closer to the approaches of Budapest, and in the Pacific, widespread air attacks against Japanese island emplacements were accompanied by new American ground advances on Leyte in the Philippines.

Company Assailed

Pollock assailed the company, asserting that telephone service had been discontinued to a large proportion of the union's officers and job stewards and that the company had brought in beds, clothing, cosmetics, and other items for the operators still at work in the Dayton exchange. Previously, he referred to the out of town operators as "strike breakers."

"The company has settled down to a fight to the finish with the union," Pollock said. "We have reports, which we can prove by affidavits, that an important company official has been attempting to get young operators intoxicated and induce them to return to work."

E. H. Gustafson, vice president of the Ohio Bell Telephone Co., told the WLB today the company was willing to resume negotiations with the union immediately on the end of the strike. If negotiations are not successful, the company is willing to submit the dispute to any agency the WLB might designate, he added.

The WLB voted unanimously last night after a lengthy session with the union chiefs to direct the strikers to end the walkout immediately but there seemed to be scant likelihood of such an occurrence unless the union officials order it. The strikers have ignored two previous WLB back-to-work orders.

The possibility of a sympathy strike in Michigan hinged on the outcome of the Ohio dispute and there also was some danger of the disturbance spreading to New York, Pennsylvania, West Virginia, Illinois, Indiana and Connecticut. Approximately 800 Michigan telephone operators voted overwhelmingly in Detroit to withhold strike action pending clarification of the Ohio situation.

Belgium, France, Italy Are Being Viewed With Particular Alarm

Minister Hubert Pierlot's government and claiming Belgian authorities appealed for Allied military assistance merely to remain in power.

The Belgian Communist paper, Drapeau Rouge, charged the Pierlot government openly with "dishonoring Belgium." This admitted Red publication claimed, further, that the government is "reducing Belgium to the level of an African colony."

Pierlot, replying to the Communist attacks, simply said: "Attempts are being made to use the armed formations for blackmailing legitimate authorities into accepting their views which have nothing whatever to do with the war."

Eisenhower Acts

Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, supreme Allied commander, was forced to take time out from directing the present major offensive against Germany to confer with two Belgian Communist ministers who had resigned their positions. The general agreed to meet the Red leaders in order to prevent Communists from openly defying the Belgian government and thereby precipitating an armed clash.

As a result of their conference with Gen. Eisenhower, the two Belgian Communists agreed that, rather than face the force of Allied troops, the resistance groups should hand over their arms. They promised to urge the Communist elements to act in accord with the agreement.

The general tendency of the radical elements and resistance groups in both Belgium and France, according to informed quarters, is to hide their guns and ammunition rather than surrender them to their respective governments.

Showdown Feared

The Communists obviously fear a showdown fight with delegated authority in France and Belgium. A pitched battle with Allied troops, naturally, would prove physically disastrous to the Communist ranks and, moreover, would hurt their cause, and the result is that the "Commies" are going underground to continue their operations in perhaps a more peaceful but definitely more pernicious manner.

Allied observers are convinced, however, that if the people of France, Belgium and Italy are given an opportunity to express their own free will, they will not support Communism, but, at the same time, there is believed to be a growing danger that the Communists may attempt to impose their views on those war-shattered countries before the people have a chance to choose the political system that they desire.

Ed Carey Talks (Thanksgiving) Turkey

Bert Childers hails Ed Carey on his back porch. "What you doin', Ed?" he asks.

"Pluckin' our Thanksgiving turkey," Ed replies.

"Looks like a chicken to me," says Bert. "Looks like one to me, too," Ed allows. "But with so many turkeys goin' to our fightin' men, some chickens got to do a turkey-size job."

Guess that's the way Thanksgiving is going to be in a lot of homes this year. We'll be sitting down to rationed foods and substitutes—and being mighty glad about it! . . . knowing that the best is going to our men overseas.

And from where I sit, the most important thing of all isn't rationed. That's the spirit of Thanksgiving! Today—as the lights are going on again all over the world—there's more of it than ever! And more cause for it—as the powers of darkness yield to freedom, tolerance, and human kindness!

of Mrs. Foster's mother, Mrs. George G. Docteur.

Earlier Mrs. Foster had told police that soon after her husband returned home from Washington following a tour of combat duty in the Southwest Pacific, she decided to tell him Hodgkinson, a life-long friend, had violated her in his car after offering her a ride home last Sept. 16 as she was about to engage a taxi.

Instead of taking her home, she related, the murder victim drove her to a tavern out of town and on the way back stopped his car and attacked her twice.

She said she did not tell anyone of the attack until finally she

Upon the death of a friend you should go at once to the house, write "With Sympathy" on your card and leave it at the door. Or, you write a letter to the family. In either case you send flowers, addressed either to the funeral of (name of the deceased) or to the nearest relative. The latter method is preferable, if the relative is a friend. But the former method is followed if the deceased alone was known to you.

On the card accompanying the flowers, and addressed to one of the family, you write "With sympathy," or "With deepest sympathy," or "With heartfelt sympathy."

When flowers are addressed to the funeral of the deceased, no message is included. If there is a notice in the papers requesting that no flowers be sent, you disregard it only if you are a very intimate friend.

A very natural impulse of kindness is to send a few flowers with a note either immediately or a few days or weeks after the funeral to any bereaved person who is particularly in your thoughts. A few flowers sent from time to time—possibly for long afterward—are especially comforting in their assurance of continued sympathy.

CITY COUNCIL WEIGHS WATER PLANT PURCHASE

Board Also Approves Acts Of Budget Commission, Accepts Tax Rates

Discussion concerning the coming special election on the water company purchase occupied most of the time Tuesday night at the regular meeting of city council.

Councilmen George Crites and Ray Cook presented arguments in favor of the purchase and Solicitor Joseph Adkins related some of the plans of city officials to publicize the election.

Councilmen also passed two resolutions and two ordinances.

One resolution approved the recent action of the county budget commission and accepted the rates of taxation set by the commission. The other specified the four Circleville banks as depositories for city funds.

Ordinances Amended

Both ordinances were amendments of appropriation ordinances. One made additional appropriations for the safety department, hospital, city auditor's office, city solicitor's office, sewage disposal, parking meter supervisor and service department. It was explained the ordinance redistributed funds now in the general fund. The other ordinance provided additional pay of $15 per month for room rent for nurses at the hospital who are required to live away from the hospital.

Councilman Ray Anderson moved that payment of the water bill for the last quarter for the city building be held up until the service department investigated. The bill for three months for the city building was $121.20, which councilmen believed was excessive.

Councilman Boyd Horn reported the claims committee recommended that the city purchase a new motor for the washing machine of Kenneth Baldwin, Town street, which was damaged when water backed into the basement of his home.

To the People of this Community

The best way to observe the defeat of Hitler is to buy an extra War Bond. In thousands upon thousands of American homes today there is pride and sadness. From these homes have come fighting men who died to bring us this far on the road to decisive victory over all our enemies. It will take more sweat, more tears, more toil, more and greater individual War Bond buying before we see Japan in the ruins these barbarians of the Pacific planned for us. How much more blood and tears depends on every individual American war worker and Bond buyer. The Sixth War Loan symbol—a bomb hurtling down on the Rising Sun—can only come to reality with your individual help. Even without the costs involved in training a crew and its load of bombs, every B-29 super-fortress means an expenditure by the government of $600,000. Buy at least an extra $100 War Bond above your normal payroll savings. That's the least you can do to back up your fighting relatives and friends.

Councilman Cook Raps Water Company Claims Before City Officials

Rebuttal of "answers" given in an Ohio Water Service company advertisement formed the main theme of Councilman Ray Cook in a speech before council members at the regular meeting held Tuesday night.

Councilman Cook said the water company says the question is "If the city buys the water plant will we get better water." He said the answer was "no, not immediately. Better service will be given but lower rates will not be in effect in the near future," he declared.

He criticized statements about the bond salesman by the company and said that if "absentee ownership is an issue, why does it not apply with equal weight to Struthers, Ohio, and New York, as well as to Chicago. In one case we keep paying dividends from now on, in the other we acquire the plant after following this procedure for 30 years."

Discusses Tax

"Since when did the Ohio Water Service company become the official bodyguard of the tax spenders?" he asked. "Did the company have the financial plight and welfare of governmental agencies at heart when within recent years it went before the state tax commission, requested and was granted the right to reduce the valuation of its Pickaway county property by some $27,000?" Mr. Cook continued.

In answer to the statement by the water company "that council should give conclusive evidence that prompted them to make this deal without securing the approval of the citizens," Mr. Cook said:

"Speaking for myself, and I think for the majority of City Officials—I did so because the City of Circleville, the State of Ohio, and the U. S. A. operate under Representative Government; a system whereby the voters repose confidence in their Representative to protect their best interest and give an account of their stewardship every two years; and it is not necessary to make a house to house canvass of your district to vote yes on an appropriation bill. The Water Co. sets themselves up as the heroic defenders of pure democracy on this issue and I would not object if they would be consistent with this philosophy. But would they if Council was to grant them a rate increase refuse to accept it until a city wide referendum was held on the grant? Did they ask for a State wide referendum to O. K. their reduction of tax valuation in this county?"

Petitions Criticized

"And while we are on the subject of elections would the Water Company care to tell the citizens of Circleville why they circulated petitions for an election on this issue and in some cases telling people that it was to be placed on the ballot of the November 7th election? They needed only 53 signatures on their petition (ten times the required amount) as of September 3, they failed to file their petitions until several days later thereby bringing on a special election at a cost of some $800 to the city. Was this done to guard the best interest of the taxpayers?"

"Replying to the Water Company answers of November 18.

"No. 1—So what? If the Water Company can convince the voters that this answer was the result of serious consideration of the experience of 85% of American cities, then a 'brushoff' of this kind is O. K. with me.

"No. 2—The local Water Company should be available for purchase at the present time; the bonding house of Stifel, Nicholas & Co. by their offer to loan the entire purchase price of the plant are in effect, betting that amount that the city of Circleville can operate it successfully.

Comments on Rates

"No. 3—At no time in recent years during negotiations for a service contract with the city have we asked for rate increases. In the data given to the City Council in March, 1942, under the heading of 'Plant Purchase,' the Water Company suggested that the city enter into a new 5 and 10 year contract with the company under the terms of which the minimum rates would be increased to $2.50 or $3.00 to the consumers, instead of the present minimum charge of $1.50 quarterly. Rates here defy comparison. According to reports, including those sent by municipalities to the state auditor's office, the Ohio Water Service plant at Struthers, Ohio, furnishes 800 more gallons per dollar than does the Circleville plant.

"No. 4—A commitment to operate for 30 years without a rate increase is idle babble. Yet in the Water Company answer to question No. 3 they say they would accept a contract tomorrow with no increase in rates.

"No. 5—If some city near Circleville paid its municipal water works $20,000 per year for hydrant rent, or approximately $91.00 per hydrant their money remained in their own community and did not find its way to New York or Youngstown.

"No. 6—Would the Water Company have us believe that Circleville and Pickaway County benefitted to the extent of $4,500 from the tax they paid? Records show that their total tax paid in Pickaway County for 1943 was $2,956.95 of which the City of Circleville received $978.51. The water plant is on the tax duplicate at a valuation of $182,990.

"No. 7—There is no double talk and no disagreement between the president of council and the publicity committee concerning the payment of hydrant rent. The president said and the committee agrees that this amount could be used to retire bonds, when our finances were normal and withheld when they were sub-normal.

"No. 8—No comment.

"No. 9—We are waiting for the detailed figures.

"No. 10—This answer repudiates a principle that is inculcated in mankind from the cradle to the grave by every agency who is interested in promoting character building and human welfare.

"In conclusion, let me say that if the voters express themselves with a negative vote I am willing to forget this proposition from now on. I ask the Water Company if the voters return a yes vote will they bargain in good faith with the City for the purchase of the plant, or will they through the 'sabotage of delay' stall it through every court to which they have access?"

By DREW PEARSON

he considered Hopkins one of the most sinister influences in government. But didn't prevent the charming Wall-Streeter from calling on Harry and having him use his influence to keep Byrnes on as War Mobilizer.

Baruch also talked to Byrnes himself at great length. Finally he climaxed it all with a call on FDR.

As Baruch was leaving the President's office, a call came through to Byrnes' office, at the extreme opposite end of the White House, saying that Bernie was on his way. Whereupon Byrnes picked up the phone, called the President and told him he had decided to remain on the job until the war with Germany was over.

"Why did you do that?" asked a friend, puzzled over the fact that Byrnes had called while Baruch was enroute to his office.

"I just didn't want Baruch to be able to say that he persuaded me to stay," said the War Mobilizer, with a broad grin.

Note — Baruch's master-stroke accomplishments through Byrnes have been the Hancock report on reconversion, which took care of Big Business but not Little; the appointment of General Hines for veterans' re-employment; appointment of Will Clayton for surplus

MERRY-GO-ROUND

This is the first time since the Civil War that Pennsylvania has two Democratic senators. The new senator, Representative Francis J. Myers of Philadelphia, is another case of a strong internationalist replacing a semi-isolationist—Puddler Jim Davis, Republican secretary of labor under Harding, Coolidge and Hoover. Myers' record on preparedness and international cooperation while in the house of representatives has been 100 percent . . . Biggest crowds in the halls of the Pentagon building these days are officers hanging around vending machines, waiting for them to be filled with cigarettes . . . New elected Senator "Cowboy" Glen Taylor of Idaho is first cousin to sphinxlike Harold Dixon Young, who steers Vice President Wallace's political fortunes . . . One of the best jobs of keeping the nation informed about its servicemen is quietly being done by Col. Al Warner and Col. Ed Kirby at the War department, both doing a bang-up job with the popular "Army Hour."

TODAY'S NATURE LESSON

LANCASTER, Pa.—A copperhead was chopped into three pieces by Robert Hoover, 23, a Lancaster County farmer. But when he picked up the snake's head it bit him.

Each day, Nature must produce about two pints of a vital digestive juice to help digest your food. If Nature fails, your food may remain undigested—leaving you headachy and irritable.

Therefore, you must increase the flow of this digestive juice. Carter's Little Liver Pills increase this flow quickly—often in as little as 30 minutes. And, you're on the road to feeling better. Don't depend on artificial aids to counteract indigestion—when Carter's Little Liver Pills aid digestion after Nature's own order. Take Carter's Little Liver Pills as directed. Get them at any drugstore. Only 10¢ and 25¢.

WE THANK THEE, O LORD

THANKSGIVING is here again—the third of this war. Americans in general must find much for which to be grateful this November.

Two years ago we were just beginning to turn back the Germans who had overrun North Africa. Today the tide of western allied armies has regained much of Italy, rolled over France, Belgium and most of Holland, to pound the bulwarks of Germany herself. Two years ago MacArthur was in Australia and the Japs still held most of the Pacific. Today our troops are advancing on Philippine soil, and the Japanese Navy has been decisively defeated in its own back yard.

At home, for a nation three years at war, we are singularly well off. We have food to go around, most of which would be incredible luxury to any European today. We have enough fuel to keep our buildings warmer than in any other warring country, and material for warm clothes. Our transportation is still adequate for any really necessary travel.

We have just finished one of the bitterest elections in our history with peaceful acquiescence to the obvious will of the majority, a proof to ourselves and the world that democracy can and does work. And incidentally a proof that freedom of press and opinion are still ours.

For each and all of these vital realities we are truly thankful. But are we thankful enough?

WAKING UP WHOLE

"BLOOD, tears, toil and sweat" were what Premier Winston Churchill offered the British people in those bitter days when nobody knew how long Britain would stand. They have now won through the great war far enough to know that, thanks to their steadfastness, they are winning at last.

But meanwhile, what of the millions engaged in the fighting? What kind of life do they lead? An American correspondent, back from the front and telling his fellow-citizens about it, says the characteristics in this mechanized war are likewise four in number—"mud, blood, pain and monotony."

He grimly adds this note for the benefit of complacent civilians: "When you go to bed here, you can be sure you are going to wake up all in one piece."

Who ever imagined that those Heinies would start manufacturing comets?

F. D. R.'s Press Conference As Gay and Happy as Ever Mrs. Roosevelt's Meeting Is Solemn One by Contrast

By HELEN ESSARY
Central Press Columnist

WASHINGTON—Would that I had the wings of that angel in the song. Or the key to television.

Then I would not have had to scurry so fast through the wet leaves and puddles of a rainy morning across the White House grounds from the Executive Office to the Big Front Door.

Puffing and splashing my way from the first Fourth Term news conference of Franklin Roosevelt to the First Fourth Term news conference (ladies only) of Eleanor Roosevelt.

Both conferences were called for 11 o'clock. I didn't have to toss a coin to decide to go to Mr. Roosevelt's meeting first and take a chance on edging in a little late on Mrs. Roosevelt's meeting. After all, presidents ARE presidents. And not to be overlooked.

Mr. Roosevelt's conference certainly was fun. I had a wonderful time. Most of the news people came away chuckling. Saying to each other: "Well, whether you were for him or not, you might as well enjoy him. Anyhow, there isn't anything much you can do about him. Not for a while, anyhow."

Mrs. Roosevelt's conference was not fun. It was solemn. After having laughed with the Big Chief for 15 minutes, especially when he searched through his desk for the yellow paper on which he had written his own bet on the electoral votes he would get, it was kind of depressing to get into the serious atmosphere of the White House second floor sitting room, where Mrs. Roosevelt and the members of her conference were struggling over world problems, domestic problems and personal problems.

We ladies of the press queried Mrs. Roosevelt on every issue from how to cure the disease known as isolationism to how much China has been broken since you came into the White House. We touched likewise on such matters as the servant problem, Mme. Chiang Kai-

ADVISES POSTWAR HIGH WAGES

WASHINGTON—It hasn't leaked into print, but General Electric President Charles E. Wilson, ex-vice chairman of the War Production Board, has a lot of Big Business moguls boiling mad at him.

I thought being in the government was hell," the big Irish production wizard remarked a little whimsically to a friend, "but this is worse."

However, Charlie Wilson is sticking to his guns. He made a speech in Atlanta, recently, proposing low prices after the war and high wages. The reception from Big Business was the chilliest he has ever received. The automobile people were especially irate. Word from inside the industry is that they planned to ask OPA for a 30 per cent price rise over 1942, perhaps settle for 20 per cent. So they have been calling Charlie Wilson all sorts of names, beginning with "traitor" and going on up.

Wilson spoke in Atlanta before a group of General Electric distributors, plus other businessmen. His two chief points were:

1—Industry must have the full co-operation of Labor after the war. Wages must be higher. "The take-home pay on a 40-hour week basis after the war must eventually represent the higher level of earnings that now prevail." (In other words, Industry working 40 hours should get what it now makes in 48 hours.) But Labor, in return must give Industry more output. It must do something to help Industry, instead of promoting the slowdown. That's the only way we can make the system work.

2—Prices must be low, within the range of Labor to buy.

"This world's got to be built around the boys who have been fighting this war," Wilson said in conclusion. "We've got to give them jobs. This is the day of the common man."

GIVE 'EM MONEY TO SPEND

Afterward, a friend jokingly remarked, "What have you been doing—talking to Henry Wallace?"

Wilson's reply to this and the criticism of his business friends is: "How am I going to sell my refrigerators if we don't give 'em wages to buy with?"

General Electric sold $500,000,000 worth of goods in 1940, expects to sell $800,000,000 by paying high wages and keeping prices down after the war.

NOTE—After his Atlanta speech, Wilson got a frantic wire from Under Secretary of War Patterson and Secretary of the Navy Forrestal urging that he make no more. Patterson was afraid Wilson would get peoples minds distracted from war work, cause people to leave for private industry. Forrestal didn't feel as strongly as Patterson, but was persuaded by Patterson to sign anyway.

BYRNES FORESTALLS BARUCH

It was largely the persistent, persuasive charm of Barney Baruch that caused ex-Justice Jimmy Byrnes to change his mind and remain as War Mobilizer. The President very much wanted Byrnes to stay and several times told him so. But Baruch, who had been able to wield a powerful, hidden hand in the government through his fellow South Carolinian, pulled skillful, energetic wires to that purpose.

One wire was Harry Hopkins. A few weeks ago Baruch had told a friend that

LAFF-A-DAY

DIET AND HEALTH

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M.D.

A FRIEND of mine of long standing, an excellent practitioner of medicine, sent me a package in the mail the other day and when

Dr. Clendening will answer questions of general interest only, and then only through his column.

I opened it I found a rock about the size of the ball of an adult's thumb. I did manage to make the diagnosis of it, from the shape, that it was a gallstone.

His letter, which came under separate cover, told me he thought I might and the public might be interested in the case. The patient was himself and the gallstone was removed in 1916 and he is still going strong, attending to business every day and having no trouble from the region where the stone was. The surgeon who removed the stone said it was the largest he ever saw come in a gallbladder. These large single stones are unusual in the gallbladder, mostly gallstones are multiple and small.

The larger the gallbladder stone is the less trouble it causes. A small stone can move around and get in the duct and stop the flow of bile and raise Cain generally, but the big stone just rolls around from side to side and causes symptoms that are often put down to intercostal neuralgia or dyspepsia, or just nervousness.

X-ray Diagnosis

My friend told me he had vague dyspepsia symptoms for years and went to several doctors none of whom tumbled to the real trouble. That was, of course, before the days of good X-ray diagnosis. Nowadays such a patient would be almost routinely submitted to X-ray and the stone, which was a calcium stone and therefore would throw a shadow on the X-ray plate, would be detected.

As this fellow said, we are probably all of us more or less stone quarriers after the age of 40. Stones get deposited in the kidneys, the bladder, the gallbladder, the salivary ducts and all sorts of places. There have even been reported heart stones. In many cases, probably most cases, they are silent and make no trouble.

The records are quite a chapter in the realm of curiosities. The largest stone ever removed, or at least on record, weighed three pounds, found in the bladder. The record for numerousness is held by no less a person than Chief Justice Marshall, from whose bladder Dr. Physick, of Philadelphia, removed over a thousand stones. No wonder his interpretations of the constitution were so solid; they were founded on impregnable rocks.

The stones which form in the salivary ducts are very puzzling unless the doctor has had experience with them. The stone, or stones, get in the duct and obstruct it and when the patient takes anything in the mouth the saliva automatically begins to form and the saliva gets dammed back and the gland swells up. Most of the patients are told they have tonsillitis, but the association of pain and swelling only with eating is what gives the situation away.

Mineral Deposits

Stones are merely mineral deposits of salts and are naturally found most often in regions when some fluid is cooped up in a cavity or recess of the body—such as the bile in the gallbladder, or the urine in the kidneys, or bladder. The salts are deposited around a nucleus which may be a bit of mucus or a collection of germs, or some other form of foreign body.

It would be hard to say just how many stones really make trouble in the body. Some humans take naturally to being stone quarriers. The stones rest quietly and do no harm. Probably one out of ten people you see on the street car is blithely carrying a silent rock around inside him.

If anything can dissolve one of them, I never heard of a proved case. Nor did any other doctor of my acquaintance.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

M. C.—Can a baby be born with pneumonia?
Answer: Yes. There is a variety called viral pneumonia that occurs congenitally.

H. C. F.—If a girl has had diabetes since the age of 13 is there any reason why she should not bear children?
Answer: Certainly not. A doctor friend of mine who specializes in diabetes has a club of mothers all of whom have had diabetes since long before the babies came. One has seven children.

CHAPTER THIRTY-FOUR

True, I was none the wiser for any of my clues, if clues they were, for I didn't know who had murdered Conrad or Claud. But still there they were, and suppose something happened to me. Not that I intended to let anything happen to me; but I did want a clear—or fairly clear conscience. Just in case.

And it was equally conceivable that the little I knew might later, in some way, clear Drue or another innocent person, rather than convict anyone.

So I wrote it quickly, a bare statement of facts about the hypodermic—not the medicine box, for that was still Drue's secret—put it in an envelope, and, as I didn't know what else to do with it, I pinned that too to the under side of my uniform, just below a pocket so it didn't show, and patted it down flat.

Even then, however, I didn't go to Drue. I had nothing to tell her, nothing at all to offer that would give her support, except my affection for her and she knew she had that.

Besides, I'd have to ask her again about the medicine box.

But I was beginning to be thankful for the trooper on guard at the door. Whatever the intention was, the result must be a degree of safety for Drue. After that twilight moment or two down in the meadow, a queer and horrible oneness was everywhere in that house, among the shadows of driveway and garden, across the stretch of lawns, around every corner. Even the encircling, shadowy hills seemed to know it and wait and watch.

I went first in search of Anna's room. The narrow hall that crossed the main corridor near the stairway led to the back of the house and I turned into it, passed the entrance to some rather steep back stairs, turned again and brought up in a wing that was obviously the servants' wing. I walked along, passing one or two open doors beyond which Anna obviously was not, and came to a closed one.

And just as I knocked someone inside the room spoke. It was a murmur, further muffled by my knock, but it sounded massive and I turned abruptly at the sound of my knuckles on the door.

But it was Anna's room; for, after a longish pause, I knocked again and then Anna said quaveringly, "Is that you, Gertrude? I—I'm asleep."

"It's Miss Keate. I want to see you."

There was another sudden silence on the other side of the door. This time however there was a quality of consternation about it. Anna was not the type for tender dalliance; I didn't even think of that. But I didn't imagine the consternation either for it was plain in Anna's voice when she said suddenly, almost at the keyhole, breathlessly, "I—I'm all right now. I'm not upset any more."

And when I insisted, she just kept repeating it, "I'm all right. Thank you, Nurse. There's nothing wrong—nothing wrong . . ." with her voice growing thinner and more frightened at every word. It was exactly as if whoever was there with her, and had stopped talking when I knocked, was standing beside her holding a club over her head.

But it wasn't really till sometime the next morning that they found the other yellow glove, bloodstained and stiff, hidden under the mattress in Anna's room. And by that time it was impossible to question her.

Well, luckily in a way, I didn't yet know about that. And I couldn't break down the door to Anna's room and I couldn't see through hard pine.

I said, "Open the door, Anna. Bebeens said you were ill. I'd like to get some medicine for you."

"Thank you, Miss Keate. No, I'm all right now." There was another slight pause, and she added, "I don't need medicine, thank you. I don't need anything."

So in the end I was obliged to retire to the end of the hall, loudly, and return on tiptoe to the open door of a room opposite Anna's. But after five minutes no one had emerged and there was no further sound of a (possibly) masculine voice from behind the closed door on which my eyes were glued. I was eyeing the keyhole thoughtfully and, indeed, had toptoeed nearer and was bending over (merely to see if a key was in it; as there was) when I heard footsteps behind me and straightened and whirled around and it was Bebeens.

Who said "Ah" and coughed, giving me a chance to pull myself together. Not that I needed it; I said "Yes, Bebeens?" as calmly as if keyhole investigation were my everyday and normal activity.

"Dear, dear," observed Bebeens, and again coughed and choked and coughed so wildly that I saw he was agitatedly concerned with something else. His eyes were bulging and his throat palpitated like a fish's gills above the little white wings of his collar.

Craig wanted me—at once, he said.

Not even by a look did he question my presence just where I was and where I had no business to be. So I followed Bebeens back to Craig's room and Craig was waiting impatiently, watching the door. "There you are!" he snapped. "Come in. That's all, Bebeens. Shut the door."

Bebeens hesitated. "If you please, Mr. Craig . . ." He looked uneasy but so determined that I checked Craig's impatience.

"What is it, Bebeens?" The butler cleared his throat and came nearer the bed. "Two things, really, Mr. Craig. I've been in some doubt, but I—if you feel quite able . . ." He glanced anxiously at me as if for my permission and Craig said quickly, "Yes, of course. What is it?" Bebeens swallowed. "A large blue vase has disappeared from the hall."

Craig frowned, his eyes perplexed. Bebeens added, "No one knows anything about its disappearance."

After a moment Craig asked, "What else?"

Today's Horoscope

A birthday today means that you let the wrongs of others worry you, and seem to feel it is up to you to correct them. You are serious and studious, and enjoy only the highest type of literature. You always are careful of appearances, and are generally cautious. Your love is strong and deep. Expect somewhat trying conditions in your next year, especially in your dealings with women. Benefits will ultimately materialize, however, so exercise patience and cultivate optimism. The child who is born on this date will enjoy average fortunes, but progress is liable to be retarded in early life by elderly relatives.

Hunsicker Home Scene Of Annual DAR Session

Anniversary of Organization Celebrated

The eighteenth anniversary meeting of Pickaway Plains chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, held Tuesday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Clark Hunsicker, West Union street, featured a splendid talk by Professor Harold J. Grimm, of the department of history, Ohio State university who made his discussion of "The Americanism of George Washington" deeply interesting to the members and visitors, about 80 being present.

In opening his talk, Prof. Grimm called attention to the fact that very few countries in the world had one person to whom all could point as representative of the best qualities of all times, and who had such outstanding spirit as a leader. He discussed the obstacles that Washington had to overcome in his youth, told of his visions and presented him as a man of faith in God and in his fellowmen; a man of convictions and one who was known for his integrity.

Prof. Grimm stated that nothing is more important in constructive work than integrity, and that it is up to us to see and catch the spirit of challenge of our ancestors; to have the faith of our ancestors and their hope, and to feel the love that makes us realize our neighbors' plight.

He said that the real Post War problem would be to provide a place for the young people and a challenge for them, basing the idea on the fact that George Washington had a job to do and had a challenge in each problem. Prof. Grimm's talk followed a delightful buffet dinner, served in the candle lighted dining room. A delightful surprise was the beautifully decorated anniversary cake provided by Mrs. Helen Black Anderson. The three-tier cake had decorations of red, white and blue. It was cut and served with the dessert course.

Mrs. Charles H. May, regent, assisted by Mrs. Anderson, chaplain, and Mrs. R. R. Bales, registrar, opened the meeting in regular form. Mrs. Hunsicker, who was the organizing regent of the chapter, discussed the first meeting and spoke of the organizing members. With but one or two exceptions, each anniversary meeting has been held in the room in the Hunsicker home where the chapter was founded.

Mrs. Hunsicker told of the Buddy Bags that had been made recently, and announced that 39 filled bags had been sent to the soldiers at Walter Reed hospital. It was announced also that two layette blankets had been completed. Mrs. Robert Wallace and Mrs. Grace Renick were presented as new members.

Baxter-Bennett Nuptials

Miss Patricia Ann Bennett, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Carl D. Bennett, Walnut township, became the bride of Private Jacob W. Baxter Saturday, November 11, at 7:30 p. m. in the Post Chapel at San Bernardino, Cal. Major John W. New performed the double ring ceremony.

The bride, who was given in marriage by Captain Ernest H. Powell, squadron commander, wore a cinnamon brown dressmaker suit with brown accessories, for the service. She carried a white prayer book, topped with a single gardenia from which fell white ribbon streamers tied with tiny white flowers.

Sergeant John Campbell, of Harlan, Ky., was best man. Mrs. Campbell served as matron of honor.

Pvt. Baxter's squadron attended the wedding and after the ceremony, held a reception in the Enlisted Men's club at the field. The table, beautifully decorated, featured a three-tier wedding cake with miniature bride and soldier bridegroom on top.

The former Miss Bennett is a graduate of Circleville high school and Dr. Anson Brown's School of Medical Technology, Columbus. She is employed at the Station Hospital Laboratory, San Bernardino.

Pvt. Baxter, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Grover Baxter, of New Cumberland, W. Va., recently returned to the States after serving three years in Panama.

The couple was entertained on Sunday following their wedding by Mr. and Mrs. Darrell P. Huffer and daughter, Franc Marie, Redondo Beach, Cal. Mr. Huffer is an uncle of the bride.

Two Entertain

Miss Doris Schreiner and Mrs. Fred Brown were co-hostesses Monday at a party in the Trinity Lutheran parish house for officers and teachers of the primary department of the Sunday school. Mrs. George L. Troutman was an additional guest.

Plans were made for the annual Christmas program of the Sunday school. Refreshments were served at the close of the evening, the guests being seated at a table with decorations appropriate to Thanksgiving.

Monday Club

"Challenges to Our Education Today" was the topic of the paper presented by Miss Margaret Rooney at the regular meeting of Monday club, in the club room, Memorial hall. Mrs. Enid Denham, Circleville librarian, substituted for Mrs. Percy May, who was unable to be present. Mrs. Denham discussed "Modern Books."

The business session opened in the usual form with Mrs. Lemuel Weldon in the chair. George Crites, of the city council, was presented to the club and explained in detail why the plant of the Ohio Water Service company should be purchased by the city. The club voted to contribute to the Penny Art fund. The resignation of Miss Marvina Hennessey, who has joined the WAC, was accepted with regret. Mrs. Frank Morrison, program chairman, presented the speakers.

Miss Rooney said that the controversy concerning education methods in America today center around two different ideals of education, the progressive, headed by John Dewey, professor of psychology at Columbia university, New York City, and the neo-Thomists, led by Robert M. Hutchins, president of the University of Chicago.

The theory of the Progressives, which began some 15 years ago and was a revolution in educational procedure, is that education is training for specific jobs and education for the present only. This results in a happy teacher and pupil since the pupil will want to learn when all hard and needless subjects have been deleted. Society profits since more useful and happy citizens must result from such a useful and happy system. The Progressives assert that education in the past was a failure because it failed to make the world happy.

The neo-Thomists assert that since many must live in a world of men, and since all men are presumed to have human traits in common, it is logical to assume that the aim of education is to know man. This is a more ambitious, more challenging, more idealistic program than training for jobs, training for the present only.

Miss Rooney discussed democracy as it interests itself in the future and said that it would provide as liberal educations as its members could take. She said also that education does not pose as an insurance against sin and error, but must lead towards wisdom, a much deeper thing than training for the present. She quoted Norman Foerster: "The individual while learning to live wisely, becomes progressively more fit to be lived with." She closed with the thought that Christ is often called the Great Teacher. Modern education, if there is such a thing, can do no better than to look to the Great Teacher.

Mrs. Denham discussed the courses at Barnard college, Columbia university, in preparation for library work. She presented brief notes on books of all types and for all ages, her talk being received with deep interest by the group. Her notes were on Brooks, Van Wyck; World of Washington Irving, Folsick, Harry Emerson; Great Time To Be Alive, Hardy; Sewing for the Baby, Dixon; When Johnny Comes Marching Home, Flexner; Steamboats Come True, Cooke; Brazil on the March, Moreley; Middle Kingdom Poems, 1929 and 1944.

GRID TITANS TO MEET SATURDAY AT COLUMBUS

Bucks Slight Favorites Over Wolverines In Big Game

COLUMBUS, O., Nov. 22—Seventy-four screaming thousands rose as one, a history-making pigskin sailed end over end through the air and two great gridiron titans sprang at each other's throats in the classical game of the 1944 midwestern football season.

That will be the scene as undefeated, untied Ohio State clashes with Michigan in Ohio Stadium Saturday in the title-deciding contest of the Western Conference campaign.

Much more than a Big Ten crown will be at stake, however, whether it be Ohio State or the visiting Wolverines. But an Ohio State triumph would mean more, much more than just a conference crown. A victory over the Wolverines will mean the Bucks' first unbeaten, untied season since back in 1917; will mean a higher place in national grid ratings (possible alongside the leading Army eleven); will mean a possible invitation to represent the East in the Rose Bowl game; and will clinch for Halfback Les Horvath almost certain All-American recognition.

In simpler terms, or from a monetary standpoint, an Ohio victory will mean something like $100,000 to the Ohio coffers plus gobs of favorable notoriety and plenty of honors for the individual standouts.

Every man in the Buck camp—from Head Coach Carroll C. Widows to the water boy—realizes that this game is the big test, the last one, for that matter. All season long Widows and his board of strategy have pointed to this game. And now that it's almost here, they wish it was still three months away. To say they dread facing Michigan is a classic job of under statement.

It's a great team that Fritz Crisler will send against the Buckeyes Saturday, a traditional Michigan team—big but not blimpy, husky and fast.

Ohio's veteran line coach and scout, Ernie Godfrey, is the No. 1 man in Columbus to tell about Michigan. He's watched the Wolverines three times this season—against Illinois, Pennsylvania and Wisconsin. He was impressed when he saw them against Pitt and he's still not quite certain Ohio State is a match for the Crisler-coach eleven.

"I expect to see a Michigan team not quite up to par after they lost Bob Nussbaumer and Bob Wiese," Godfrey told newsmen in Columbus. "But when I saw them for the first time against Pitt I was tremendously impressed and I haven't changed my mind since watching them against Illinois and Wisconsin."

The Bucks will have a slight weight advantage but not enough "to worry about" according to Godfrey. The Michigan line scales 190 pounds, about six pounds less per man than Ohio's forward eleven.

The calendar—and the barometer—point to your need for a good, warm overcoat now. You'll find an ample selection here in monotonous, herring-bones and novelty patterns—single and double breasted for all regular sizes.

RISE STEVENS GUEST STAR
Rise Stevens, Metropolitan soprano will be the guest star of Bing Crosby, Thursday. Miss Stevens, Bing's co-star in "Going My Way," is known as "The Glamour Girl of the Met." She is the girl who actually turned down an offer from that august institution two years ago because she didn't believe she was ready to accept it. Instead, she studied abroad and upon her return gave one of the most sensational performances in the history of the Metropolitan Opera. For her solos on the Crosby program Rise has chosen "Through the Years," and "The Last Rose of Summer."

THANKSGIVING DEBUT SET
The Hon. Sumner Sewall, Republican governor of Maine, and Prof. Frederick L. Schuman, author and professor of political science at Williams College, will be the debaters, when "America's Town Meeting of the Air" recreates the atmosphere of an early American town meeting in its Thanksgiving broadcast, Thursday. "For a Successful World Organization, Must All Men Accept Democratic Principles?"

plea?" is the discussion topic. Gov. Sewall, a much-decorated combat ace in World War I, a commercial airlines founder and executive, and for the last decade a leading figure in Maine's government, speaks for the affirmative. Prof. Schuman, holder of the Woodrow Wilson Fellowship of Government at Williams College, who observed on the scene the inauguration of Russia's first Five Year Plan and the Nazi Revolution in Germany, upholds the negative. George V. Denny, Jr., founder of "Town Meeting," will moderate this session, which will originate in a New England town hall.

HUGH HERBERT VISITS
A man of a dozen careers and a hundred interests, Hugh Herbert takes a new role as boss of the Hugh Herbert Chemical Company, when he is guest star on the Amos 'n' Andy show Friday. The Kingfish and Andy get control of a new magic cleaning fluid. They make a deal with Herbert's company to market the product and bring them a fortune. But they are taken to the cleaners themselves when the inventor, one Fluke Harris, has no idea of the fluid's ingredients.

RADIO NEWS NOTES
Now that France is liberated, Wilfrid Pelletier, the "Metropolitan Opera Presents" maestro, will celebrate Christmas in traditional French style. He'll play Pore Noel to the youngsters of Metropolitan Opera staff members in a ceremony which includes stuffing their sabots (French kids don't hang up socks) with Yuletide goodies.

IT'S GILBERT MACK, VERSATILE CHARACTER ACTOR IN "THE ADVENTURES OF THE THIN MAN," WHO HAS BEEN PLAYING THE PART OF A PARROT ON THE SHOW. THIS IS A WELCOME CHANGE FOR THE VERSATILE MACK, WHO ORIGINALLY WAS THE VOICE OF THE VOLUBLE CANINE ON THE PROGRAM, THE POCH "ASTA."

Fan mail for Renee Terry, petite young lady who appears on "Bright Horizon," pours in every week from listeners who continually rave about her singing and ask for more. She is a soprano, works hard on her singing as well as her speaking voice because the script of the show often calls for rendition of vocal solos by "Barbara West."
